Ayer's Ague Curc, which neutralizes this malarious soless is the blood, and stimulates the liver to expel it from the hody—As it should, so it does care this officting disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more ar arfandose what is of more service to those subject to this infection. If taken in season it expels it from the system as it is abserbed, and thus keeps those white use it free from its attacks; keeps the system the health although expect to the disease. Consequently it not only cures, but protects from, the great variety of affections which are ladered by this malignant influence, such as flowing the tree of the control of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which, when arising from this cance, will be found to assume more or less the intermittent type. This "Act a Cone" removes the cance of these derangements, and cures the disease.

This it accomplishes by stimulating the exerctories to expel the virtus from the system, and these organs by degrees become habited to do this their office of their own accord. Hence arises what we term acclimatation. Time may secomplish the same end, but often life is not long enough, or is sacrificed in the attempt, while this "acre. Cure." does it at once, and with safety. We have great reason to believe this is a surer as well as safer remody for the whole cines of diseases which are caused by the misamatic infection, than any other which has been discovered; and it has still another important advantage to the public, which is, that it is cheep as well as good.
